Overview of ECU Health Community Benefit Programs

1. Eastern North Carolina is comprised of 1.4 million people living in 14,000 square miles. Boundaries are from I-95 East to the coast, and from the Virginia line down to and including Onslow County. The area is largely rural and largely poor, with higher than state or national average rates for poverty and uninsured. Health status indicators show increased incidence of disease in the region, especially cancer, heart disease and stroke. ECU Health determines priorities for t	arget populations by working in concert with medical and communi	ty agency partners in ongoing assessment of the most pressing health	care needs.

Many efforts over the past decade have focused on diabetes	, pediatric asthma, school health, injury prevention, access to care,	nutrition enhancement, physical activities and chronic disease scree	nings. Also, special programs to manage the care of Medicaid enrollees,	address access to both medical care and medications for the uninsu	red, and coordination of services for children with obesity have be	en undertaken. The populations that are served by addressing	these issues are largely the poor, the underserved, and minorities. Det	ermination of specific populations to address occurs when partners such	as the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services, local he	alth departments, county Healthy Carolinian task forces, and ph	ysicians identify a quantifiable need, and community partners are e	ngaged to work together with the health system.

2. Funding for community health programs is obtained from both the operating funds of ECU Health entities and external grant-awarding organizations. The ECU Health Board annually provides financial support for the Community Benefit Initiatives program of its foundation. These funds are then awarded to community agencies that successfully demonstrate both need and a well-designed plan to address one of the Foundation's priority categories. In addition, each ECU Health hospital financially supports community health resources within its operating budget. Programs vary according to the hospital's financial ability and community need, but all include collaborative efforts with local health departments, including health screenings and education to targeted populations. ECU Health also has a successful track record	of obtaining community health program support from external agencies th	at award grant funding to approve projects. The ECU Health Grants O	ffice was established in 2008 and serves as the central point for gr	ant mining, acquisition and management of grants awarded to ECU Health	hospitals for community-based programs. Grant funds are utilized to	demonstrate the Effectiveness of a proposed community program, measure	the outcomes achieved, and garner long-term sustainability from either	the health system, other community agencies or as a collaborative pro	gram. Many community health programs are collaborative in nature with	local service agencies, and often a portion of the grant funds a	re used to support resources or Services in these agencies.

3. Community health priorities are determined following a comprehensive review of community member feedback and secondary health data. Community alliances, partners and organizations, including local health departments, participate in this review. A list of the most pressing health issues are compiled for each community and then prioritized following an assessment of current health resources to address the identified health issues. Established resources/coalitions and new partnerships are formed to address the identified health priorities.

4. Community priorities are also established in response to a compelling need identified by health practitioners or community groups. ECU Health is fortunate to have a strong collaborative partnership with East Carolina University, and works closely with the schools within the Health Sciences Division, especially the Brody School of Medicine. BSOM is an active participant in almost every community health initiative, 132212 11-11-21 60 09590809 797738 3001285972 2021.06010 UNIVERSITY HEALTH SYSTEMS 30012851
